Alternative Collect

Lord of creation, whose glory is around and within us: open our eyes to your wonders, that we may serve you with reverence and know your peace at our lives' end, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Post Communion Sentence

Almighty God, you have taught us through your Son that love is the fulfilling of the law: grant that we may love you with our whole heart and our neighbours as ourselves; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

There has been a new trend in weddings this year and that is the inclusion of dogs. Several couples have asked if their dogs can be part of the service. My answer is yes, but suggest that the dogs come in to the rehearsal and we see how they behave. Some are good and some are not, so then at some weddings the dog is sitting in church, in others they meet the couple outside. Although I am not a dog person, I also understand just how important pets are, and how big a part they play in people's families and their lives. A clergy dog can also be very useful: ours is taken on visits to those housebound people who desperately miss having pets of their own; he is a reasonably regular member of the Tuesday 9.15am congregation and is thoroughly spoilt there; and of course is there for every Stick Sunday.

This week has seen the launch of the Tring Loneliness and Social Exclusion Initiative, organised by different charities, to help us make sure that we are aware of who might be on their own in our communities and how we can reach out to each other. Loneliness can be a particular issue for the elderly but can also affect all generations. It is one of the ironies that one of the side effects of all the social media in our lives is that so many people can feel left out and uncared for.

We all have our part to play, whether it is inviting others to concerts or coffee mornings, or whether it is us as the lonely person taking that first step and saying yes to the invitation.

Our calling as God's children is to be part of community, part of a church, and to reach out to those who feel alone.

Invitation to all Tring Team churches
